Beautiful but very short Hidden Object game in a steampunk setting.. so m f cute. I don't even know is this sequel to Heavy Fire: Afghanistan. So far graphics are fine but the sound is outdated or like airsoft gunsounds. Do not buy this is game if you're looking forward to run. It's on-rails shooter.. WTF is this brainwash game.

I played for 2 minutes and my walls and friend skin was green.

Dude this game is illuminati confirmed.. Tickles the significant hexcells gland. This is a good vr game but after a lot of tries I still haven't escaped... :(A little rough in the beginning, but worth spending some extra time with.

This could become a nice co-op game. Well worth the 0.19€ it cost me.. Story, settings and puzzles felt much too generic.. Very funn game :D Compelted all achievements but the level with Gaben is fckng hard :D Other levels are fine i got them in like 10-15 minutes but to Gaben i spend like 1 hour. The last bonus level is ez too :)

Be careful becouse this game will destroy your eyes , head and mind :D After palying this game 1 hour you will see nothing in real life :D gg wp :). Low budget Grand Theft Auto X.Highly reccomended.

10/10. This Game Is So Cool. This is an old school, arcade-style shooter. Nothing particularly special. It's also a port of a mobile game, and it's very obvious.

* It clearly looks like it was designed for a tall resolution (i.e. holding your phone in portrait mode to play), as all the graphics are oriented that way, if you look closely.

* Your plane auto-fires constantly, you just need to worry about accuracy and dodging for the most part.

* It's very typically grindy, and appears to have been balanced around the usual mobile model of, "slow progress unless you pay." Thankfully, any actual "Pay2win" has been stripped from this port, but the grind remains.

At full price? Not a chance. At a dollar or less? Sure, it's a fun little diversion if you want something mindless to play and feel nostalgic for the old games. The graphics are very '80s arcade' and the sound is decent. Catchy tunes, and no annoying sound effects (that I've found). Lots of little voice quips from allies and enemy bosses.

Another thing worth noting is that the planes all make an effort at looking like what they're supposed to, so the devs at least put in a modest amount of homework. Bosses are, of course, completely ridiculous, but that's a genre conceit and charming. Perhaps even required.

I know this one didn't get amazing reviews, but at a discount, I recommend it. I've paid more for worse and still not felt completely ripped off.. Finally~ <3. This is a tidy little game.

There isn't too much to say about it, since what the game advertises is exactly what you get. There shouldn't be any surprises for you. It's a good, not too serious racing experience with league promotion and relegation which is a really nice touch.

New players shouldn't be frustrated by this. I stink - I doubt anyone reading this is as bad at racing games as I am - and I never at any point have felt like I'm totally uncompetitive in the SP mode. I never play MP and can't comment on how good that is.

Honestly we need more games like this. It's almost impossible now to find a decent racing game which doesn't require $90 worth of extra peripherals which I'm not willing to clutter up my den with.

Overall this is well worth it. You won't be disappointed.. I wasn't sure what to expect getting in to this game after reading through the reviews, but first time playing I really, really enjoyed it. Growing up playing lots of SNES games, for some reason it reminded me of SmashTV and I love that game to death. Aside from having to stay in just one area and fortifying yourself against zombie hoardes, it has that SmashTV feel to it: you kill a whole bunch of things and collect useful items. The only major difference is instead of toasters, microwaves and money you're collecting scrap metal and grenades to survive the massive amounts of zombies.

Overall I really recommend this game. It has that feeling of a throwback while also capturing some elements relevent to modern games, especially the ever growing zombie survival genre. Don't be fooled by its pixel graphics either - to me that's probably one of the most enjoyable aspects of this game, and they're really well done in a way that's both enjoyable but also nostalgic.

As a side note, it's just a great damn game to run around and bust up some zombie
